

The Value Of Experience

While it's generally accepted that life experiences lead to wisdom, not all wise people are old, and many old people are not wise.

For there is assuredly nothing dearer to man than wisdom, and though age takes away all else, it undoubtedly brings us that.

Good people are good because they've come to wisdom through failure.

When a person with money meets a person with experience, the one with experience ends up with the money and the one with money leaves with experience.
